

DNEWS arrives in the US with all the news from Latin America and around the world

The first live news channel in Latin America has sealed an alliance with EVTV to reach Spanish-speaking audiences in Miami and other cities in Florida.

Buenos Aires, February 2025.- DNEWS, the first live news channel from Latin America for Latin America, brought its journalistic content to audiences in the United States through a strategic alliance with EVTV.

DNEWS will share the most relevant news, live coverage, and special reports with the growing Spanish-speaking community in Miami and other cities in South Florida, home to approximately 5 million Latinos.

The channel will be part of EVTV's programming with a news program broadcast Monday through Friday at 11 a.m. (Eastern Time), giving viewers access to all the most relevant information to understand and analyze what is happening in Latin America and the world.

“It is a great satisfaction to move forward with this alliance with EVTV because it demonstrates the growing expansion of DNEWS and the interest of audiences in quality information and journalistic products that allow them not only to be informed but also to interpret events,” said Marcelo Salomone, news director at DNEWS.

DNEWS will also share with EVTV live coverage and special productions such as those on the crisis in Venezuela, the “Tren de Aragua” or the successful series Familias Narco, which accumulated more than 3 million views on YouTube and also reached Spotify.

In the United States, EVTV is available on channel 1090 on Comcast, Roku, Amazon Fire TV, and Apple TV.
